

30-sec live read:

Every day, across the country, hundreds of college radio stations take to the air – broadcasting music and programming that you won't hear anywhere else.

College radio changes the lives of those who are involved with it, and can change those who listen to it, too.

You can support college radio by donating to the College Radio Fund. This fund gives financial grants to the college radio stations that need it the most, and is run by a non-profit charity called the College Radio Foundation.

For more information, please visit collegeradio.org